METHODOLOGY

Method of data collection: “Face to face” interviews in the respondents’ households,

Sample Size: 1407 respondents

Target Population: citizens of Serbia (excluding Kosovo) 16+ years of age. The population was defined on the basis of the 2002 Census population data, vital statistics and migration data, and the ISM population size estimates.

Sample Type: three-stage, stratified, random representative sample. The sample was boosted with three groups of special interest (citizens between 16 and 23 years of age, ethnic Albanians and Bosniaks/Muslims) to ensure a reliable assessment of results for these segments of the population and their comparison with the average results for the total population.

Sampling framework: polling station areas (around 200 households per polling station area)

Sample stages

- Polling station area (around 200 households) selected with probability proportional to size – PPS
- Households selected by the random route method from the given address (simulation of the SRSWoR scheme)
- Household members selected by the use of Kish tables (simulation of the SRSWoR scheme)

Around 10 respondents per primary sample point.

Stratification based on:

- Six geo-economic regions
- Type of settlement – city/other

Allocation per stratum - proportional to the sizes of the given strata

Post-stratification - based on gender, age, type of settlement and geo-economic region, and ethnic groups

Sampling error: margin of error (incidence 50%) +/- 3.00%

Field control of at least 12% of the sample, logic and consistency checks in 100% of the cases

NOTE: The sizes of the demographic sub-samples are presented in the Report as post-stratified (weighted) – in proportion to their shares in the total population. The sizes of samples of interviewed Albanians and Bosniaks were boosted wherefore the actual size of the sample of Albanians stands at n=140 and the actual size of the sample of Bosniaks stands at n=207.

- Title explains the variable whose relative frequencies are given in the table.
- Total in the first column shows percentages for each category of the tabulated.
- Each next column represents percentages of the given variable within some subpopulation.
- Row marked with N denotes size of the base, i.e., the size of (sub) sample on which the percentages are calculated.
- Row marked with sig, represents significance of Hi-square statistics of the observed variable and variable from columns, if hi-square is significant, significance is written in white letters.
- The last row in the table 100% indicates that all values in columns are added up to 100, that is, that column percentages are given.

0.01	0.05	0.10		0.10	0.05	0.01

Cells of the table are colored in blue, or red, if values they contain are considerably above or below the average. Three shades of blue or red color are used for three degrees of significance, the lightest shades for deviations significant on the level 0.10, medium shades for the level 0.05 and the darkest shades of blue and red for the level 0.01.

Example of interpretation of data from the above table (structure of education):

- Significance of hi-square (significance of both hi-squares of statistics is lesser than 0.01) tells us that distribution of education by gender/ type of settlement differs significantly.
- Glimpse at the cells of the table shows that there are significantly more males with three year vocational school on the level of significance 0.05 (total number of respondents in the sample with this type of education is 11.8%, and among males 15%). Similarly, there are significantly less females with this type of education (on the level 0.05) 9%.
- There are significantly more respondents with faculty, academy (level 0.01) in urban settlements compared to entire population (12%), and significantly less in other types of settlements (the same level of significance 0.01) that is, 4%.
